PROFILE

I'm a second-year student at Kwame Nkrumah University of Science and Technology (KNUST), currently learning and growing in software engineering with a focus on full-stack development. I'm someone who stays organized with my studies and tries to keep improving myself both technically and creatively. My goal is to become a full-stack developer who can build complete, useful, and well-designed web applications. I'm actively building my skills in both front-end and back-end development and enjoying the process of solving problems through code.
